Join Us for Today's Webinar at 1:30pm ET SPACs in Space: A New Frontier for Investment

How has space become suddenly hot, and what does the surge in SPAC activity mean for the space industry and the investor community? Sign up for today's free webinar to find out.

St. Petersburg, FL, April 7, 2021 – Quilty Analytics is pleased to invite companies and institutional investors across the Satellite & Space industry to our webinar on the growing universe of public space companies, many of which are going public through a Special Purpose Acquisition Company (SPAC) merger.

Webinar Description

Advances in space technologies driving the SPAC trend were largely unknown to public equity markets until July 2019 when Virgin Galactic announced its intent to go public through a merger with a SPAC. Since then, seven space-related technology companies have announced plans to go public in 2021 via a SPAC transaction. Does this represent a tipping point for the new space economy or just a flash in the pan? Our speakers and experts will answer these and other SPAC questions.

Complimentary Quilty Research to Accompany Webinar

Quilty Analytics recognizes that not everyone interested in the webinar has an in-depth understanding of the Satellite & Space industry – such as the latest technologies making space more accessible and the leading companies behind them – and as such, we have prepared a complimentary briefing on key trends driving investor interest in the growing space economy that can be accessed here. We encourage you to access this briefing prior to the webinar.

Chris Quilty, Partner of Quilty Analytics, commented: “We are pleased to collaborate with SpaceNews and ICR on hosting this webinar with an all-star lineup of speakers who will share their expert knowledge on the expanding space investment landscape. Our focus will be on updating interested stakeholders on the growth and rapid pace of change happening across the space ecosystem, particularly as the number of publicly traded space companies is expected to increase dramatically during the coming year.”
